Being an authority on disputes with a stellar track record of legal excellence and innovation is what initially forged Jay Strosberg’s reputation. But being exceptionally skilled at developing and maintaining relationships and running complex, lengthy cases is what makes him truly unique. Jay’s ability to make the inharmonious harmonious is why he is regarded as one of Canada’s leading practitioners at structuring and litigating national and international class actions.

Jay acts for claimants on some of the world’s largest and most significant competition proceedings. He was instrumental in negotiating the $500 million settlement with Loblaw’s in the bread price fixing class action, which is the largest price fixing settlement in Canadian history. Jay has recovered more than $1 billion for his class action clients in both competition and securities class actions.

Jay was counsel in the Lundin Mining securities class action and successfully argued the ground-breaking appeal in the Supreme Court of Canada concerning material change, the result of which will guide Canadian public markets and Canadian disclosure requirements. Chambers-ranked Jay was previously named by Lexpert as one of Canada’s ‘Rising Stars – Top 40 Lawyers Under 40 in Canada’, as a ‘Consistently Recommended’ leading practitioner in class actions and as a leading cross-border class action lawyer. Jay was also one of the youngest Canadian lawyers to be included in the Lexpert/American Lawyer Guide to the Leading 500 Lawyers in Canada. Most recently, Jay received the King Charles III’s Coronation Medal. Jay speaks frequently as an expert on advocacy, class actions and cross-border litigation.
